Letter from the President

Greetings and congratulations to the Curry College Class of 2003.

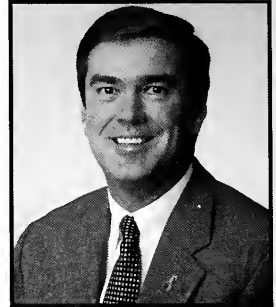

As President of your College, I wish to take a moment to congratulate you on your achievement in becoming a Curry College Alum. You have studied at and graduated from an outstanding Institution that gets stronger each passing year. As an Alum, our pledge to you is that Curry College will continue to improve and make you more and more proud of your Alma Mater.

Our request to you is that you stay engaged with the Curry Community. As we continue to build our great College into an even greater one, we need your assistance. Please get involved as an Alum and stay involved.

Once again, congratulations on your achievements at Curry College and best wishes for much continued success.

Sincerely,

Kenneth K. Quigley, Jr.

Russell Pregeant

Dedication

Russell Pregeant, who retired this year after over 30 years of extraordinary full-time service to Curry both as Professor of Philosophy and Religion and as College Chaplain, helped shape the lives of hundreds-indeed, thousands-of students on this campus. His classes on Biblical literature in general and on the New Testament in specific were always engaging, wide-ranging, and linked to the lives of real students in a world often torn by conflict, strife and injustice. Dr. Pregeant's integrity was evident in everything he said, whether in front of a class or at the lectern delivering one of his eloquent and lyrical invocations or benedictions; indeed, this integrity shone through in everything he did. (Of him it can be truly said that he walked the walk.) Russell Pregeant's light will always remind his Curry friends that it is possible to follow the difficult path toward knowledge and truth, and to do so with joy and delight.

History Of Curry College

Anna Baright was born into a Quaker family in Poughkeepsie, New York in 1854. She attended Cary's (Friends) School and Cook's Collegiate Institute, from which she graduated in 1873. She taught briefly in New York state before teaching elocution in Milwaukee Female College. In 1875 she entered the Boston University School of Oratory. She graduated Cum Laude in 1877.

That School was headed by Dean Lewis Baxter Monroe, who has been called a Transcendentalist, after the glory days of New England Transcendentalism. Certainly something of the transcendentalist spirit characterized the school of the Currys and somewhat influences the college today. It is a practically applied Transcendentalism that emphasizes the centrality of mind and the abilities of people to triumph over challenges that sometimes seem insurmountable.

Professor J. W. Churchill of Boston University called Anna Baright "the greatest woman reader [dramatic reciter] in the country." Dean Monroe said, "Her power is second to none, either on the platform or as a teacher."

Monroe appointed Baright his First Assistant. They were planning the country's first summer school of oratory, to be held on Martha's Vineyard, in 1879, when Monroe died. Baright carried on the work and the five-week term was highly successful. But after Monroe's death the School of Oratory was demoted to a department in the School of All Sciences and the University entrusted its leadership to a young man, later Snow Professor of Oratory, who had studied with Monroe and to whom Monroe had referred to Miss Baright as a private student: Samuel Silas Curry.

With the encouragement of Boston University President William F. Warren, Anna Baright set up her own school, the School of Elocution and Expression, in downtown Boston in the fall of 1879. It had the purpose of carrying on Monroe's principle that "expression is the outward manifestation of that which is already in the consciousness." This school provided a two-year program patterned on that of the former Boston University School of Oratory.

The Currys' School

On May 31, 1882, Anna Baright married Samuel Silas Curry. In 1885 the name of the school was changed to the School of Expression. The new name indicated emphasis on natural expression, as distinguished from the artificial formulas associated with elocution. In the same year, the Boston University trustees gave Curry permission to merge his private classes into the new school. In 1888 the School was chartered by the state and Curry left his Boston University position. Curry was the School's head, called variously over the years Principal, Dean, and President; Mrs. Curry served as teacher and eventually what was called Dean. The Currys had six children, including Haskell Curry, a noted mathematician and logician. The couple continued to run the School until S.S. Curry's death in 1921. Anna Baright Curry died in 1924.

Samuel Silas Curry

Curry was born in a simple farm house in Chatata, Eastern Tennessee, on November 23, 1847. His family included Daniel Boone, Kit Carson and Davy Crockett. He was also born into the rigors of farming life, including the difficulties of the four years of the Civil War, during which the armies of the North (to which East Tennessee remained loyal) and the South kept moving across the state, taking from the farm whatever they wanted. There were no schools operating there at that time, so Curry “and his brothers, after working on the farm all day, studied by themselves late into the night before the pine-knot light of the fireplace.”

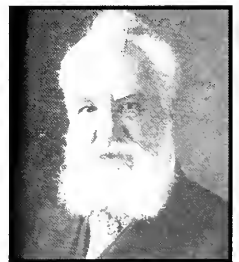

Curry gave up his right of inheritance and worked his way through East Tennessee Wesleyan University, from which he was graduated with honors in 1872. In 1875 he earned his S.T.B. ministerial degree at Boston University. His diploma from the School of Oratory and his M.A. degree, were awarded in 1878. He received his Ph.D, from Boston University in 1880. The same year he received his diploma from Guilmette’s School of Vocal Physiology. During the summers of 1880 and 1882 he studied with prominent teachers in England, Italy and France. In 1905 Colby College awarded him a degree of Litt.D.

While serving as the head of the School of Expression, Curry also taught at various times in several theological schools, from Union Theological Seminary in New York to the University of Chicago. Despite his religious commitment, the institution has never had any denominational affiliation. S. S. Curry’s own religious orientation moved from Methodism to the Transcendentalist-related outlooks of Christian Science and the New Thought movement, which William James in The Varieties of Religious Experience considered under the heading “the religion of healthy-mindedness.” A School of Expression teacher, John Seaman Garns, later became President of the International New Thought Alliance. However, Curry was not exclusive in his religious connections. He was a close friend of Phillips Brooks of Trinity Church and George A. Gordon of the new Old South Church.

Curry and Alexander Graham Bell

Alexander Graham Bell’s father, Boston University Professor Alexander Melville Bell, a leading elocutionist, was a valued advisor of Curry and endowed a chair for the School of Expression. When the School gave the elder Bell its highest honor, the diploma of honor, in 1899, it addressed him as one of its co-founders.

One of Curry’s Boston University School of Oratory teachers was Alexander Graham Bell. Bell’s opening lecture, in 1873, stimulated Curry with regard to the possibilities of the science of voice.” According to one of the Currys’ daughters, Curry was present when in 1876 Bell made his first telephone call, requesting help from Mr. Watson. Bell was the Chancellor of the School of Expression from 1907 until his death in 1922.

Curry's Philosophy of Education

Curry considered all the reforms in education for the past two hundred years [as having] been in the direction of expression: To harmonize the education of the mind with the education of the body. To co-ordinate the power of thinking, and the power of feeling and to harmonize all the faculties of the mind.

Curry referred to Froebel's observation that "all education was emancipation."

If so, a study of the process of removing the restraints of character and all into simultaneous

Curry explained his basic educational principles in terms of the thought of Pestalozzi, who emphasized the importance of two sides of acquisition, on the one hand, and production, or creation, on the other. "We call these two phases of education Impression and Expression," said Curry.

Curry's philosophy naturally led to emphasis on the individual student.

The 1885 first catalog of the School of Expression shows great flexibility for students to choose courses in accordance with their needs and available time, so that no student is retarded by being a member of a class. By this arrangement, also, students can elect a course suited to their individual needs, or students of neighboring colleges and schools can elect steps according to their time, and thus take a full course by extending it over a longer period.

The school's emphasis on individual with apparent approval to the effect that "all education is expression," and added:

of expression affords the most effective means of removing all repression [He develops the highest expression abnormal character must be corrected and the powers be brought into harmonious co-operation.

his basic educational principles in terms of the thought of Pestalozzi, who emphasized the importance of two sides of acquisition, on the one hand, and production, or creation, on the other.

attention is found in catalogs such as that of 1900-1901, saying: "Every student is requested to call and have his needs analyzed, and receive suggestions for work from one of the teachers sometime before the opening of school."

Personal concern for students extended well beyond the classroom. The School carefully supervised the housing that students could find in the neighborhood.

The catalog emphasized: "The first aim of the School is TO ATTAIN THE HIGHEST IDEAL OF MANHOOD AND WOMANHOOD."

The Institution after the Currys

Catalogs a decade after Curry's death, expressing Curry's thought and our own endeavors summarized the function of the institution in the following words:

From the beginning, the School of Expression has measured its usefulness largely by its ability to take people where it finds them and, through training, to enable them to realize their powers and possibilities.

From studying the catalogs, one gets the impression that for a decade after Curry's death, the school remained much as Curry left it. Thereafter, the Institution added a wide variety of courses in and out of the area of speech and, in 1938, was given the power to grant degrees. The title was changed officially from school to college on April 21, 1943. In the 1960s the prevailing emphasis was on becoming accredited, which was achieved in 1970. This meant becoming a traditional liberal arts college.

After Curry College attained accredited status, it launched again into pioneering programs. In 1970 it established its Program for Advancement of Learning (PAL), the nation's first college-level program for students with language-based learning difficulties. In 1974, Curry absorbed the Perry Normal School, which taught teachers of nursery, kindergarten, and primary levels. In 1977 Curry took over the Children's Hospital nursing school and converted it to a degree-granting program. In 1981 Curry established a master's degree program in education. Individually-initiated majors, field experience, and equivalent education became increasingly important in this decade. An Honors Program followed. In the 1990s, Curry has expanded greatly its Continuing Education programs, with courses offered not only in Milton but in its newly-acquired Plymouth site, with some courses also offered in Braintree, Cambridge, Medford, Peabody, and South Boston. Among the innovations are weekend and evening degree and certificate programs in several areas. During the first several decades of its existence, the institution occupied five different locations in Boston. The last of them being two houses on Commonwealth Avenue; the only place that the College held owned until that time. Finally, in the 1950s it moved to its present spacious location in Milton, where it gradually enlarged, most recently in 1995.

The Enduring Curry Spirit

Although the Currys would be amazed by the present campuses and programs of the institution, if they looked beneath the surface, as surely they would, they would be pleased to discover that much of the original spirit survives.

The Currys provided a remarkably comprehensive, holistic, education in the context of teaching public speaking which sometimes seems to have been little more than an opportunity for plumbing the depths of reality and joyously finding oneself in its flow. No characterization of the Curry Method does it full justice; it has been called an uncompromising completeness of approach to achieving practical wholeness of living involving intuition, thought, research, feeling, and physical expression. The method includes all that one could want in a traditional, intellectual liberal education, but goes beyond that to link it to a conscious drawing out of whatever creative essence lies at the heart of one's existence and facilitates one in expressing creative synthesis in some constructive form. The tools, detailed topics, types of students and settings have changed over the decades, but the creative impetus endures. Such is the heart of Curry College.

I would really like to thank God for helping me get through the 4 years of college. I would also like to thank my parents, especially my mother. Without my mother I don't know where I would be. This last year of college was kind of a challenge for me, especially the last semester. I say this because I was pregnant, and I felt that I had to finish the rest of my courses no matter what. With the help of my professors, and my advisor it helped everything go smoothly. Thanks to everyone and my self motivation I had my bacc and graduated.

Being a nurse means: you will never be bored, you will always be frustrated, you will be surrounded by challenges. So much to do and so little time you will carry immense responsibility, and limited authority. You will step into people's lives and you will make a difference. Some will bless you some will curse you. You will see people at their worst and at their best. You will never cease to be amazed at people's capacity for love, courage, and endurance.

Midnight Madness is one of Curry's newest and best traditions that happens every fall. It is a time for the basketball teams to show their stuff. Midnight Madness is also the night where the Curry Step club and Dance Squad shows there new dances off, and what they are all about. Midnight Madness is a great time to have fun with your friends, and to support the Curry Step Club and Dance Squad and as well as the Curry Athletes.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION (SGA)

The SGA is the heart and soul of the student body. It is the main governing body of all the clubs and organizations on campus. SGA serves as a representative voice of the Curry students to the administration, faculty, Board of Trustees and the Milton community. The SGA consists of an executive board, representatives from each class and members of each club and organization, meetings are held on Wednesday at 2:00pm in the SGA room (basement of Student Activities building), and are open to all members of the community.

The Alliance

President~ Charlie Roberts

Advisor~ Julie Smith

The Alliance is organization dedicated to providing social, educational and support services for the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender Community and their Allies. The organization meets once a week puts together social activities as well as campus wide education programs. Plus, the organization acts as a support system for the gay community. All are welcome to attend all meetings and programs no matter how the person may identify. We remind everyone that within the Curry Community diversity is our strength and that exclusion is not a choice.

Curry Cares

The members of Curry College have all realized that an important part of learning is to learn how to help those in need. One of the goals of Curry Cares is to serve and help the community both on and off the Curry College Campus.

Over the course of the year, the club has participated in a variety of volunteer works. Our ventures have taken us to the Milton Animal Shelter where members cared for the animals and helped in maintaining the facility. At the Greater Boston Food Bank we helped in sorting donated food that would go to feed individuals in the surrounding area. This past February caring individuals from the Curry community spent a few hours of their Valentine's Day at a local retirement home. It was there that members from Curry Cares arranged a Valentine's Day party in the hopes of brightening such a special day for the retired residents.

This year was a successful year. We hope that in the future Curry Cares will expand its opportunities to the community. Many thanks to those who made it happen.

Student Ambassadors

The mission of the Curry College Student Ambassador Association is to serve the college by providing prospective and incoming students with a positive, memorable first experience at our college. We do this through our many events including Open Houses, Accepted Student Day, Phone-a-thons, etc. Student Ambassadors are dedicated to serving the inner and outer communities of Curry College and have an upbeat, positive outlook about the school. Ambassadors are eager to share their experiences with new students.

During the 2002-2003 academic year, the CCSAA participated in and hosted many campus events, making this our most successful year thus far! We began the year on September 6th at Curry's annual club fair in an effort to recruit new members and did not stop going until May 6th, when we ended the year with a bang at our annual Spring Banquet in the theme of a tropical luau. Our calendar was jam packed all year long with exciting events including the annual Welcome Back Ice Cream Social, training, the October and November Open Houses, the Winter Banquet, fundraisers, February and April Phone-a-thons, Accepted Student Day and much more. Some of the major highlights included attending the Students In Admissions Forum at Western New England College, our many attempts at working with the South Shore Habitat for Humanity (we had to switch dates three times due to snow and on the final attempt, we got rained out!), raising over $1100.00 to sponsor a family through the Quincy Salvation Army in our Holiday Raffle, completing the 20 mile Walk for Hunger Hosted by Project Bread and finally, the Spring Luau during which we awarded our "Rookie of the Year" award to Colleen Smith, our "Ambassador of the Year" award to Brittany Collins and said a proud but sad goodbye to our seniors. With another successful year under our belts, we are eagerly awaiting what lies ahead in the fall!

Campus Activities Board

CAB

Campus Activities Board (CAB) is the major programming body on campus. The organization's goal is to provide activities for all the various interests and demands of the students on campus. CAB was responsible for everything from Welcome Week to Spring Fest and everything in between!

In preparation to plan the best year yet, 10 CAB members attended the NACA regional conference in the early fall and participated in educational sessions to learn and bring forth innovative ways for programming and publicizing events.

In order to "get the word out" we came up with some new innovative advertising techniques. Free handouts and our "in your face" style of advertising engages people and welcomes them into the fun, for personal interaction makes one feel important.

We added some new series events this year such as the Coffehouse Series, themed Bingo Nights, and X-Events, which offer positive rewards and feedback showing our appreciation for attendance.

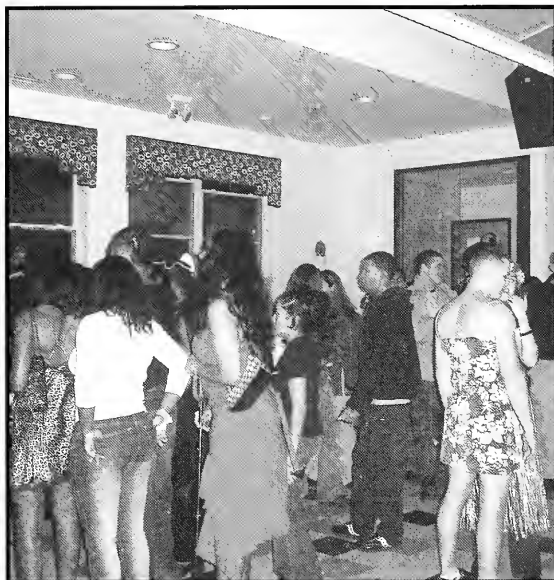

The Coffehouse Series featured bands and comedians once a month. They provided an intimate, welcoming, and laid back environment that lead to it's productivity. We offered refreshments and various board and card games to keep you entertained. Bingo Nights were surprisingly popular with prizes given out to match the theme. While X-events were random and you never knew when the next one would be, they also helped increase attendance.

Chris from Mtv's Real World, Movie Nights, Pizza Challenge, Super Bowl Party, Mamma Mia, The Feud, Psychic Fair, Pumpkin Carving, Wrentham Outlet Shopping Trip, Free Massages and Snow Globes are just a few more examples of this year's events!

WMLN

WMLN Yearbook submission

WMLN-FM 91.5 is definitely not your typical college radio station. Through the hallways of this small building located next to Hafer, are over 100 students working the airwaves 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. During the extended and summer breaks, WMLN broadcasts 13 hours. WMLN has been on the air since 1975 and is celebrating its 28th year of public service. WMLN is a non-commercial station with 172 watts of power. WMLN reaches a 40+ mile radius and broadcasts a potential audience of 200,000. The radio station is a student-run operation and is advised by Professor Alan Frank, the Director of Radio. WMLN is supervised by a student Station Manager, Program Director, Engineering Director, Operations Director, Assistant Operations Director as well as department directors in Music, Sports, Promotions, Production, and News. WMLN plays a variety of music, from Hip-Hop to Hard Rock...WMLN plays it all! All students are eligible to have an on-air position, in fact it's encouraged. WMLN loves to have fun but is also dedicated to serving the public. Maybe that's why WMLN is an award winning station, winning Associated Press Awards in News and Sports for over 10 years! WMLN has many affiliations that include: Associated Press, Intercollegiate Broadcasting System, Massachusetts Broadcasting Association, National Association of Broadcasters, New England Broadcasters Association, and NBC & CNN Network.

As Station Manager at WMLN, I had the opportunity to meet new people, learn radio first hand, and assist in leading the radio station in the right direction. Through my four years, WMLN has experienced its highs and lows but in the end it has transformed into a productive, fun and uplifting environment. I will miss WMLN very much, but I am glad that I was able to serve as Station Manager this past year. I met so many people and feel that I have been a big asset to the station. I know the station will be in good hands next year and the years to come. WMLN is a small station with lots of power and that's why I feel that WMLN is not your typical college station. We are different and we are constantly making changes to improve the station. For example, we have changed our logo this year, added even more prizes to give to our listeners, and have conducted music surveys to the campus. I am proud of each and every person at the station that has contributed to making WMLN a great facility. I will miss each and everyone of you, especially Alan Frank. Good luck class of 2003!

The Alcohol Beverage Committee has had another successful year. Under the direction of Co-Chairs Lee-Ann Meehl and Keon Diggs, as well as the Supervisors Kerri McGovern and Mark Lange, ABC has provided quality service to the college and its constituencies. This year, ABC has increased its role on campus by creating an educational piece to its mission. The group sponsored an alcohol awareness presentation, featuring alumnus Ray Collins. In addition, ABC has become a member of SADD, or Students Against Destructive Decisions. The Alcohol Beverage Committee continues to be a very successful group on campus.

International Club

President~ Tali Epelbaum
Advisor~ Michelle Bracken

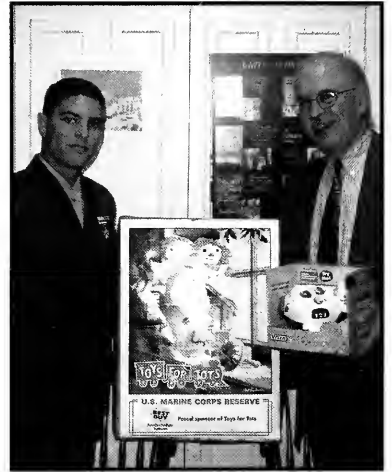

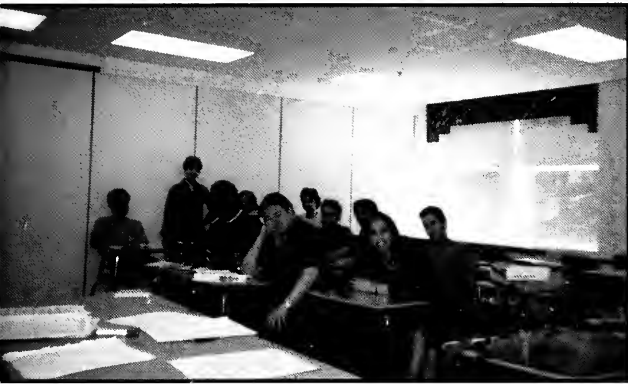

The International Club will have three main purposes. First, the club will help build friendship among International and American students, faculty and staff of Curry College. Second, the club will provide a way for members to learn about different cultures and ethnic backgrounds from new friends. Third, the club will build a network of friends, and associates with people from different areas of the world.

The International Club is open to all members of the community. It is for them to start a new journey of independence, meet new people, share their ideas and feel more welcome at Curry College.

The goal of the International Club is to make it a melting pot where we can each share our own culture and at the same time talk about the difficulties and advantages of being foreign.

We organized a dinner at the President's house where we shared our culture, cuisine, and diversity with our friends at Curry. This past year we were able to organize a community service for Toys for Tots, and make children happy on Christmas. Getting together and having welcoming dinners with Cuban food is another way to encourage international and non-international I students participate.

As the President of the International Club, I would like to welcome all the international students to our campus and most importantly I would like to thank President Quigley, Faculty, and students for providing us a home away from home here at Curry College.

New residence hall slated for fall semester

By Natasha Naoum

Curry President Kenneth Quigley recently spoke glowingly of the new residence hall that is being built on the South Side of campus.

"We believe the new residence hall will enhance the experience of all members of the Curry College community, and will provide a better living and learning environment for our students and bring us closer to achieving many goals inside our strategic plan," Quigley said.

The building of the new residence hall will not cause the college to accept more students than are required by the growth plan, Quigley said, adding that this year's enrollment target calls for a very modest growth in the entering class.

The intent of the new residence hall

A new residence hall is being constructed on the South Side of campus.

is to respond to the demand of returning students. The new residence hall will not affect the size of classes, which will remain under 20 students on average, according to Quigley.

He stated, "This is one of the great strengths of our college."

The renovation of older residence halls is not included in the strategic plan. The thought is that the new residence hall should relieve the pressure on the existing residence halls.

There might be one more residence hall built on campus in the future, depending on the need to house more students, Quigley said. But, as stated at the open forum, the school's size will not increase to more than 2,000 students.

A plan for a new student center is also in the works, according to the president. There are two ideas being entertained. One is that they will build out into the Drapkin parking lot. The other idea is to build up on top of Drapkin.

Many people were wondering why the new residence hall was being built before the new student center. Quigley said that the reason is the new residence hall will help fund the student center.

The Cheerleading team had many freshman this year, so it was a big building year for them. They attended a NCA Collegiate summer camp at BU last August, where they learned many new stunts, cheers, and dance moves. They also traveled to New York to cheer on the football team in the playoffs, as well as cheered for the women's basketball team when they made the playoffs. They also for the first time attended the football banquet.

Yearbook Colophon

This yearbook was printed by Jostens, Inc. out of their State College, PA plant. Senior portraits were provided by McGrath Studios in Braintree, MA. Pictures were provided to us by either student submission, our wonderful staff photographers, or Curry's campus photographer, Matt Hakloa, who helped us tremendously. The majority of the photos used in this book were digital images, placed into layouts using Jostens' Picture Placer.

The book was printed on 80# gloss paper and distributed at no charge to all graduating seniors. These pages were all created using Adobe Pagemaker 6.5 and Jostens Yeartech 2003 on a PC platform.

The editor for this book was senior Stephanie Moskal. Staff photographers were freshmen Megan Hazlehurst and Katie Piskor, and senior Pat Spera. Section editors were Sabrina Dimelio for Sports and Katie McMakin for Clubs. Yearbook adviser Mike Randall oversaw progress on the book and has improved his computer skills:)

The cover was designed by cover artist Rick Brooks and editor Stephanie Moskal. All cover photos were taken by Stephanie Moskal.

Special thanks to our Jostens rep Tara Anderson for all that she has done for this years yearbook staff, and in-plant consultant Christina Ripka for helping us along the way.

To Megan,

Desiderata

Go placidly amid the noise and the haste, and remember what peace there may be in silence...

As far as possible, without surrender, be on good terms with all persons. Speak your truth quietly and clearly; and listen to others, even to the dull and the ignorant; they too have their story. Avoid loud and aggressive persons; they are vexations to the spirit.

If you compare yourself with others, you may become bitter or vain, for always there will be greater and lesser persons than yourself. Enjoy your achievements as well as your plans. Keep interest in your own career, however humble; it is as a real possession in the changing fortunes of time... Exercise caution in your business affairs, for the world is full of trickery. But let this not blind you to what virtue there is; many persons strive for high ideals, and everywhere life is full of heroism...

Be yourself. Especially do not feign affection. Neither be cynical about love; for in the face of all aridity and disenchantment, it is as perennial as the grass... Take kindly the counsel of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth. Nurture strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune. But do not distress yourself with dark imaginings. Many fears are born of fatigue and loneliness.

Beyond a wholesome discipline, be gentle with yourself. You are a child of the universe no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should. Therefore be at peace with God, whatever you conceive him to be.

And whatever your labors and aspirations, in the noisy confusion of life, keep peace in your soul. With all its sham, drudgery and broken dreams, it is still a beautiful world. Be cheerful. Strive to be happy.

With all our love and Best wishes for a wonderful life.
Thanks for the memories we love you so.

Love,
Mom, Dad, Jed, Gareth, & Bret.

Monster,

It must have been fate that we came together and even more so that we opened our eyes to one another.

As we run through our lives at such a rapid pace, we can only go into the future; to our light at the end of the tunnel. For me, that light is you.

You have influenced and awakened my life in countless ways. I cannot begin to explain the love and appreciation that I feel towards you. Each day we grow closer as one.

You are my lover, my best friend, and the one who will be in my heart forever. I cherish you and need you more than you will ever know.

You are my love, my monster.

Love,

Bondyboo
